SOLDIERS' MONUMENT UNVEILED.

Presented to the Providence Union Veterans' Grove Association.

PROVIDENCE, June 9.—The soldiers' monument, presented by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association to the Union Veterans' Grove Association, was unveiled and dedicated in the grove at Roger Williams Park this afternoon with interesting exercises. The various Grand Army posts of this city marched to the grove at 2 o'clock, and on the platform were Governor Dyer, Mayor Baker, officers of the Rhode Island Department, Grand Army of the Republic, members of the state and city governments and others. There was also a chorus of 500 pupils from the Providence High School.

The American band opened the exercises with an appropriate selection and Rev. Hopkins B. Cady of Brockton offered prayer. After singing by the children, the monument was unveiled by Former Postmaster Charles H. George, who in an eloquent address presented it to the Grand Army of the Republic veterans on behalf of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association. The monument was accepted by Hon. Davis S. Ray, president of the Union Veterans' Grove Association, and after music by the American band Governor Dyer made a short address.

WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS.

Chicago Veterinary Society Planning to Regulate Sale of Milk.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Public war on tuberculosis was formally declared last night, when the Chicago Veterinary Society decided to take the initiative in the crusade against the scourge. To that end the society has called a joint conference of the veterinarians and physicians of Chicago, to meet June 21. Mayor Harrison, Governor Tanner and the aldermen will be invited. The purpose of the meeting will be to form specific plans for the prevention of the sale of milk in the Chicago market that is not known to have come from non-tuberculosis cows. A committee was appointed to confer with the Chicago Medical society and other institutions in reference to the details of the conference.

The papers to be read are to be confined to the subject of regulating the sale of milk with a view to exterminating the source of tuberculosis milk. The veterinarians will advocate legislation for the inspection of the cows that supply the Chicago markets. The plan that stood most in favor at the meeting was that suggested by Dr. Quitman, who said: "It is necessary that we induce the city council to take action for the appointment of at least 60 cow inspectors, who shall give licenses to those owners whose cows are found to be all right. The cows shall be tested every three months. The city shall appoint as many milk depots for the inspection of incoming specials of milk as are deemed necessary. Every can of milk that is shipped into the city shall bear upon it the number of the shipper's license."

Hild Maitre Labaris, secretary, proceeded to the prison and met Picquart, who was released about 3 o'clock and proceeded to the residence of M. Case.

Lieutenant Colonel Picquart was imprisoned in July last, charged with communicating confidential documents, and has since been accused of fabricating a document intended to compromise Major Esterhazy.

FLOATED, BUT BEACHED AGAIN.

Steamer C. H. Northam Evidently Seriously Injured.

GREENS FARM, Conn., June 9.—Sound steamer C. H. Northam, which was beached off this place early yesterday morning, after a serious collision with the Richard Peck, a sister vessel, was still on the sand this morning, but her position had been changed.

At the midnight tide a successful effort was made to float her. She was pulled off readily and started out, apparently for New York. She had not gone 1,000 yards before it was discovered that it would be unwise to make the trip, and she was driven on the beach, this time grounding at a point 100 yards, possibly, distant from the place where she was beached yesterday. So far today those on board refused to explain the cause of her return, and in the absence of such explanations the opinion prevails that the Northam may be more seriously damaged than was at first supposed.

IRISH NATIONALISTS.

Antagonistic to Anything Like an Anglo-American Alliance.

BOSTON, June 9.—The Globe this afternoon prints a letter from William Redmond, brother of the Parnellite leader and member of Parliament from East Clare, Ireland, prompted by the report of a recent interview with Major J. Bustace Jameson, member of Parliament for West Clare, who for some weeks has been in America on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton in connection with the challenge for the America's cup. The interview referred to attributed to Major Jameson the assertion that the proposed Anglo-American alliance would be beneficial to his countrymen and the statement apparently was given emphasis by the declaration that Major Jameson represented "Daniel O'Connell's constituency."

Mr. Redmond's letter declares that Nationalist Irishmen everywhere are strongly antagonistic not only to the idea of an Anglo-American alliance but to any policy which might tend to make friends for England while Irishmen are deprived of the right to govern themselves.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Increase—George F. Crocker, Pawtucket.

THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD.

Somehow I had formed the idea that Siberia was, in the main, a mountainous, broken, barren, and even sterile country, covered with forests—which opinion, I am inclined to think, is somewhat generally entertained in the West. Nothing could be further from the fact. Of all the surprises met with in my somewhat extensive travels, Siberia is the greatest. As a whole, it contains, perhaps, the largest continuous area of level lands on the globe. Excepting spurs of the great Altai range of mountains fringing its southern border, and cutting occasionally to some distance northward into Siberia, the entire western half of the country is exceptionally level, almost to flatness.

It would not be far from the fact to say that for 2,000 miles east of the Ural mountains, and extending to the Arctic sea, Siberia is almost as level as the ocean. In over 1,900 miles I do not believe the grade of the railroad varied 300 feet, and in many places it is as straight as an arrow, without the slightest curve, for 40 or 50 miles. Indeed, there is one stretch of perfectly straight road for 116 versts, or nearly 80 miles.

Along the whole line there is the most luxurious growth of grass I have seen in any country. There are many varieties, some like the native blue stem of the West, and one variety that in appearance seemed closely allied to the Kentucky blue grass. Judging from the superb condition of the animals that graze upon them, they must all be of the most nutritious nature; it is, therefore, not only one of the finest, but by far the largest grazing region in existence. If fully utilized, I believe Siberia could furnish the beef supply for the world.

Although the winters in Siberia are very cold, they are not especially long or trying. While the extreme temperature during winter may reach a point 10 to 15 degrees lower than in Ohio or generally in latitude 40 degrees in the United States, still, as the air is very dry and there are no high winds, I have no doubt the winter season can be passed without especial discomfort. When winter sets in, which it does suddenly, and usually about the first of November, it continues steadily through about five months, when there is a sudden breakup, ushering in permanently pleasant warm weather. By those who have the experience, I am informed that the winters are far more agreeable than in other countries, where the temperature is higher and more violent changes occur. The rainfall in summer is seasonable and abundant.

It is easy to see what a magical transformation must take place in this great region, even if slowly, under the influence of an extended railway system. It is all the more easily imagined by one who has already seen in his own country an object lesson of a similar character. I doubt if the Russians fully realize to what an extent their great enterprise is going to modify their economic, and, perhaps, social conditions.—Ainslee's Magazine.

An order has been issued by the Secretary of the Navy assigning Lieutenant Commander W. H. H. Southerland to the command of despatch boat Dolphi n, sometimes called "the President's yacht." He will relieve Commander Henry W. Lyon, who is placed on waiting orders.

This Morning's News.

VOLUNTEERS NOT NEEDED.

Otis Will Get His 30,000 Men Without Them.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Thanks to an interpretation of the army reorganization law made by the comptroller of the treasury, the regular army has been unexpectedly increased by 2,600 men, and the President is spared the necessity of calling for volunteers or depleting the force now maintained in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Under the decision rendered to the War Department by the comptroller, the entire hospital corps, heretofore counted part of the regular establishment, is not to be so considered, so that its 2,600 men, while still retained in service, create that number of vacancies in the regular army, which will be promptly filled.

Orders have already been issued by the department directing the 2,590 recruits now at the Presidio, San Francisco, to proceed within the next 10 days to Manila, and, re-enforced by the additional 2,600 men to be recruited, General Otis's regular force will consist of 29,030 men.

It is expected that orders will be given in a few days directing the Twenty-Fourth infantry, now stationed in the West, to prepare for service in the Philippines. With the recruits and this regiment General Otis will have more than 30,000 men under his command when the volunteers are gone, the number he deems necessary to successfully control the situation in the archipelago.

There is no place in Manila where recruits can be drilled, and exercises outside the city during the rainy season are impossible. It has therefore been determined to carefully train the men before their departure from this country.

WAR AVERTED.

Costa Rica Withdraws Troops from the Nicaragua Border.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Minister Calvo of Costa Rica has been advised by his government that the two companies of troops sent a short time ago to Port Limon, near the Nicaraguan border, because of the assembling of large bodies of Nicaraguan troops on the border, have been withdrawn. The minister accepts this as showing that there is no further likelihood of a clash between the Nicaraguan and the Costa Rican troops on the border.

The press report that trouble had been caused by the action of the Costa Ricans in refusing to allow Nicaraguan troops to cross Costa Rican territory or to move along the San Juan river, is attributed by Mr. Calvo to the simple fact that General Tarres, the Nicaraguan commander, probably was without the usual government permit required when an outside military force enters the territory of a foreign government. The minister feels satisfied that the small border disturbances have not affected the two governments so as to cause a rupture between them.

FULLY $75,000.

Amount of Hough's Shortage Increasing Steadily.

DOVER, N. H., June 8.—The list of Harry Hough's embezzlements grows daily. Officials generally are now convinced that the amount of other people's money he has taken will exceed $75,000. The state of affairs at the bank grows worse as the examination proceeds, and its books and accounts are now in a terrible state. Nothing definite can be told from them, except that every hour something comes up to show that the shortage is increased.

Bank Examiner Carroll has been unable to go through more than about a dozen deposit books, but in a majority of cases it has been found that the entries were falsified, and all around the indications of financial devastation are piling up until one can but wonder that the ruin Hough wrought did not come to the surface earlier.

SWEPT BY FLOODS.

Twenty-five Dead and Much Property Loss in Texas.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 8.—The cloudburst of yesterday, which swelled the rivers of this portion of the state out of their banks and caused a great loss of property, was much worse than reported last night. Meagre reports tonight place the number of lives lost at 25.

San Saba and Manardville, small towns 90 miles north of here, in the mountains, are reported to have been swept by the raging floods and badly devastated. In the former town eight people were drowned, and the entire place is reported under water. The river at that point is now one mile wide and running like a mill race. At Manardville 13 houses were swept away and 17 people perished. The river is reported as rising at both places, and grave fears are entertained that the entire country in that neighborhood will be laid to waste. San Saba is located in a valley, and vast tracts of wheat fields are under water. These crops will prove a total loss.

Of the drowned at Manardville, two were young white girls, Lydia and Anna Wells by name. The others were all negroes, who were living in cabins close to the river front.

The town of Kingsley, in Llano county, 150 miles west of Dallas, is said to have been partly swept away. The flooded region takes in approximately 20 counties, with Llano on the east, and nearly all of them without telegraph or railroad lines.

RIOTS IN PARIS.

Clash Between Revisionists and Anti-Revisionists.

PARIS, June 8.—Slight riots occurred this evening between the revisionists and the anti-revisionists, after a meeting addressed by M. Francis de Pressense of the Temps, in the Clichy district of Paris. There were several fights between rioters and the police, who charged the populace. Finally the revisionists made a move toward the residence of M. Zola, with the object of demonstrating, but the police interfered. Several revolver shots were fired during the disturbances, and 20 persons were placed under arrest.

In the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies today there was much talk of the possibility of the overthrow of the Dupuy ministry.

The refusal of the government to allow M. Joseph Lasies, anti-Semite and anti-revisionist, deputy for Gers, to interpellate on the Dreyfus affair led to a renewal of violent scenes in the Chamber today. His motion was finally shelved by an overwhelming majority.

There are increasing indications that there will be violent scenes at Longchamps on Sunday, as various parties are expressing a determination to demonstrate.

COMPOSITION OF COMPANIES.

Their Organization Decided by the State Militia Commission.

At its third session, held at brigade headquarters in Providence last night, the commission of officers appointed to revise the state militia law made considerable progress, and among other things decided on the composition of the company organizations. An important recommendation included is one for the exemption from jury duty of militiamen who have served faithfully six years. The commission will meet again next Thursday night. The members present last night included General Kendall, Colonel Abbot, Major Barker, Major Tingley, Captain Wolcott, and Lieutenant Eswald of the Naval Reserves.

On company organization it was decided that the troops of cavalry are to consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, four sergeants, six corporals, two trumpeters, one saddler, two cooks, two farriers and not more than 31 privates. The staff of the cavalry squadron is to include a surgeon with the rank of captain, one adjutant, a quartermaster, a veterinary surgeon, each with the rank of first lieutenant, and a non-commissioned staff to consist of a sergeant major, a quartermaster sergeant, a commissary sergeant, a hospital steward and a chief trumpeter.

The battery of light artillery is to consist of one captain, two first lieutenants, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, one veterinary sergeant, one stable sergeant, four sergeants, eight corporals, two musicians, two cooks, four artificers, and not more than 40 privates. The machine gun battery is to be similarly constituted, with 27 privates instead of 40 as in the light battery.

The divisions of the Naval Reserves are to consist of one lieutenant, one lieutenant (junior grade), two ensigns, two boatswain's mates, two quartermasters, three coxswains, and not more than 42 men.

The battalion of heavy artillery is to be commanded by a major, whose staff shall include an assistant surgeon with the rank of captain, an adjutant and a quartermaster with the rank of first lieutenant. The non-commissioned staff is to include a sergeant major, a quartermaster sergeant, a commissary sergeant, a hospital steward and a principal musician. The battalion is to consist of not less than three nor more than five batteries. These batteries are to consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, four sergeants, six corporals, two musicians, two mechanics, with the pay and allowances of sergeants of artillery, two cooks and not more than 48 privates.

There is also a section providing that when ordered out for duty the brigade commander may employ a band, to include a chief musician, a drum major and a cook, in addition to the musicians.

A general discussion on the signal corps ensued, the general sentiment being that officers and men of each company should learn the wig-wag at least. It was finally decided that a signal corps is necessary as an organization. The matter was finally left open, with the provision that such a corps shall be formed.

On the election of officers the commission decided to recommend the present term of five years for the term of office instead of seven, as comprised in the law proposed by the governor. The officers affected are the adjutant general, quartermaster general, surgeon general, judge advocate general and the brigadier general commanding the brigade. The provision of the proposed law allowing the commander-in-chief to appoint an inspector of rifle practice, in addition to his aides, was stricken out. The commission was unanimous in favoring the elective system for officers now in vogue rather than the appointive system. The commission will recommend that the term of office or officers, field and line, be five years. Company officers are now elected for three years.

The matter of exemption of militiamen from jury duty has been covered by a clause providing that after one year's service of the three years' enlistment a militiaman shall not be required to perform jury duty, and all militiamen serving six years honorably and performing 85 per cent of active duty are to be thereafter exempt from such service. Exemption from jury duty has been found to work well in other states, but has not heretofore been provided for in this state.

A number of sections of the law submitted to the General Assembly in 1898 were discarded as unnecessary, and changes were made in others.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mrs. Susan C. Fish, widow of Abiel C. Fish, died Thursday afternoon after an illness of many weeks, having been unconscious since the previous Friday. She died of old age, being over 80, and weakness incident thereto. She was a daughter of the late Captain Henry G. Coggeshall of Bristol and a descendant of one of the founders of Rhode Island, where most of his descendants have made their homes since that time. When quite young she married Abiel C. Fish of Portsmouth and they became the parents of 10 children, who with one exception, Emmeline, lived to maturity. Three have died—Fannie L., William LeBaron and Elizabeth P. Darling. The six who have survived her are Mrs. Georgiana Douglass, and Mrs. Olivia Talbee of Bristol, Mrs. Sarah Easterbrooks of Newport, Mrs. Florence P. Blake of Providence, Captain Henry C. Fish of New York and Alfred A. Fish of Portsmouth. There are seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Quite a number of years ago Mr. and Mrs. Fish celebrated their golden wedding and a few years ago Mr. Fish passed away. She was a consistent Christian, a devoted wife and mother, and a kind neighbor and friend.

Miss Cora L. Franklin, who was married to George N. Chace last Sunday in Fall River, is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Franklin.

A special session of the town council was held Thursday evening at the town clerk's office, with all the members present. John R. Coggeshall and Walter B. Chase were appointed Republican supervisors and David B. Anthony and Charles A. Franklin Democratic supervisors for the election to be held at the town hall June 20. The compensation was fixed at $3 for each supervisor, and it was voted that the clerk should give notice to each of his appointment. Dr. Minot A. Steele was appointed and directed to vaccinate as soon as possible all the school children of Portsmouth.

The item in yesterday's News in regard to the old records of Portsmouth needs amending. The General Assembly appropriated $1,000, or so much thereof as is needed, to print 500 copies of the early Portsmouth records under the editorial care of the librarian, Mr. Amos Perry, of the Rhode Island Historical Society, and not, as was understood, for the purpose first named.

HOW THA SPEL IN CHIKAGO.

A dispatch from Chikago yesterda sez that the bizniz men thar ar in favor of fonetik speling. Dr. E. Benjamin Andruz, the superintendent of the publik skools thar, iz in favor ov it to. Wun bizniz man, it iz sed, wants the word which most pepl spel "through" to be spelt "tru," but Dr. Andruz is not in favor of this bekoz he sez that it iz not pronounst that wa. But the bizniz man sez it iz pronounst just that wa.

This queschun of fonetik speling iz an old wun, and this iz just wun of the objecshuns to the plan, that everybody wood spel wordz the wa he himself pronounst them, even when he pronounst them rong, and so a good many pepl cood not reed what other pepl rot. There iz another objecshun to it. If it shud ever be used altogether, if books shud be printed this wa and if pepl shud lern to reed this sort of stuf, tha wood not no how to reed the books that ar printed in the present wa, and so ol the books and ol the librariz that ar in the world to-da wood be simply wast paper, for nobody cood reed them except skolarz who had learned the old wa of speling.

In Chikago tha propoz to chang the speling of ten words, as an entering wej. But why stop at ten? Why not chang them ol at wuns and rit. Ek this?—[New York Tribune.

EXPORTS OF BICYCLES.

American Wheels Sent to All Parts of the World.

The opening of the wheeling season gives especial interest to some figures just prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics. These tables show that American wheels are now being ridden in all parts of the world. In the wilds of Mexico and Central America, under the blazing skies of Cuba, Porto Rico and other West Indian islands; across the pampas of Argentine, Brazil and other South American states; amid the densely populated areas of China, British East Indies and Japan, and in the jungles of Africa, the American wheel is making its way. Even in the great manufacturing countries of Europe, where workshops and skilled workmen abound, millions of dollars' worth of American bicycles are sold each year. During the four fiscal years 1896, 1897, 1898 and 1899 the exportations of American bicycles amounted in round numbers to $20,000,000.

That such large numbers of a machine requiring such high grades of workmanship in its production should be continuously and successfully exported, in competition with the workshops of the most successful manufacturing countries of the world, is a fact of which American workmen and Americans generally may justly feel proud.

Four million dollars' worth of American bicycles will, during the fiscal year about to end, go to European countries, countries in which the manufacturing industries antedate by generations those of the United States. To France, with all her skilled workmen and ingenuity, exportations of American bicycles in the fiscal year 1899 will be more than double in value those of 1897, while the fact there has been a general lowering of prices indicates that in numbers the increase has been very much greater. To Germany the exportations of bicycles in 1899 will be 60 per cent in excess of those of 1897, though something less than those of 1898. To other countries on the continent of Europe the bicycle exports of 1899 are 50 per cent in excess of those of last year or the year before. In the united kingdom the bicycle exports of the year are materially less than those of 1898 as measured by values, though the fall in prices probably accounts for much of the apparent reduction as shown by the figures, which give values exclusively and do not indicate the number of machines exported.

One curious and interesting fact in regard to the exports of bicycles illustrates the general tendency of our export trade in manufactures. This is the fact that a very large proportion of our exports of manufactures go to manufacturing countries. Two thirds of our bicycles go to countries which make a specialty of manufacturing, and this export to manufacturing countries increases rather than otherwise.

It will be remembered that predictions were made a year or two ago that the exports of bicycles to Japan would decrease as soon as the Japanese had obtained sufficient numbers as models for their own factories and established themselves in the manufacture of wheels. This prediction, however, has not proven true. The exports of bicycles to Japan, which in the fiscal year 1897 amounted to $52,179, were in 1898 $88,905, and in the fiscal year which ends next month will reach fully $130,000.

The islands which have been brought into closer relations with us by the events of the past year evidently appreciate bicycles as among the good things of the United States. Cuba, which in the nine months of 1897 bought but $1,469 worth, has bought in the nine months of the present fiscal year $8,101 worth of bicyles. The exports of bicycles for the full fiscal year 1898 to Cuba amount to $9,214, to Porto Rico $3,359, to the Hawaiian islands $52,072, though to the Philippines there seems to have been no direct exportation of bicycles.

The largest single buyer of our bicycles in the fiscal year 1898 was the United Kingdom, which took $1,852,166, though, as already indicated, the figures as to values for the current fiscal year will not be as large as those of last year. Germany's purchases of bicycles from us last year amounted to $1,724,464. Canada came next in amount of purchases in this line, the total being $611,402, while France was next with purchases amounting to $482,682; British Australasia next, $309,006; Netherlands, $251,918; Denmark, $228,370; British Africa, $148,503; British East Indies, $90,388; Japan, $88,905; China, $27,449; Dutch East Indies, $13,368, and Africa, $11,647. To many of these distant places the exports of bicycles in the present fiscal year will exceed those of last year. To Japan, as already indicated, the present year's exports are nearly 50 per cent in excess of those of last year; to Argentina they have more than doubled, and to the British East Indies the increase is more than 150 per cent.—[Washington Star.

THE HYGIENE OF THE BEDROOM.

Miss Goodrich, superintendent of the School of Housekeeping, St. Botolph street, Boston, was the lecturer recently in the regular course of demonstration lectures given Thursday mornings. Her subject was "The Hygiene of the Bedroom," and in connection with it she gave a long and valuable talk regarding the matter of disinfectants and their use.

The lecturer advocated that all bedrooms be as simple in their furnishing as it is possible to make them, while at the same time making allowance for the fact that they may be made attractive if common sense ideas are put into force. There should be an absence of unnecessary bric-a-brac, for one thing, as with many pieces of merely ornamental furnishings, there must be more dusting, which should be made as unnecessary as possible. Draperies should be inexpensive, and of wash materials, if used at all. Usually, when an increase is made in the cost of draperies or hangings, a departure is taken from the class of goods best fitted for the purpose of bedrooms. The matter of temperature of the room is an important one, to which too little heed often is given. The consumption of air by the average person during several hours occupancy of any room was explained, and the need of a large room for sleeping purposes, with an increase of pure air therein, was pointed out clearly. Different means of ventilation were described, and how they may be adapted to most homes was shown to be comparatively an easy problem.

The care of rooms in sweeping, dusting, and like work, it was stated, should be along the line of that carried out in the care of other parts of the house. It should be thorough and systematic for one thing.

In speaking of disinfectants, Miss Goodrich based her talk on the thought that "the price of carelessness is too often the sacrifice of human life." She entered upon an exhaustive description of germs of various kinds, how distinguished, and how they affect human life. Their origin, development, wherein they spread disease, and like important matters were taken up in turn, and much valuable information given about them. The various processes in disinfecting were described, and what to use and how to use it. She explained the difference between disinfectants, antiseptics, and deodorizers, and their various uses and the results therefrom. In closing, Miss Goodrich made a strong appeal for much sunlight, plenty of pure air, and constant effort for cleanliness of body and home.—[Boston Transcript.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Portions of South county are just now infested with large swarms of an insect known as the "Devil's darning needle," that suddenly made its appearance from the eastward a few days ago. Their appearance is supposed to be attributable to the long-continued drought.

The transfer of the National and Providence Worsted Mills to the American Woolen Co. is meeting with some opposition. A suit in equity has been brought by Cyrus P. Brown, Samuel P. Colt of Bristol and George Reuter, Jr., of New York, asking the court to restrain the respondents, Charles Fletcher and Leander R. Peck, from continuing their transactions with the American Woolen Co. The case will probably receive a hearing Saturday.

The accident to steamer C. H. Northam will not affect the running of the New Haven line to Providence. It is expected that the Richard Peck will arrive Monday morning, and another boat of the line will replace the C. H. Northam, so that the service will be established the same as if there had not been an accident.

It is not probable that the line of electrics between Providence and Bristol, to be run by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad on the present Warren & Bristol line, will be in running order before the first of September. This delay will be caused from the fact that it is thought that it will be impossible for the Union Railroad Company, which will furnish power for the new line, to be in a position to do so before that time.

SURPRISES THE FILIPINOS.

If General Otis continues the present campaign against the Filipinos without making the rainy season an excuse for suspending operations, he is likely to reveal to the astonished world the fact that the Spanish ideas about this part of the tropic year were as ill-founded as most other Spanish rules of action. Until Napoleon's day Europe considered it impossible to wage war in the winter, but he tried the experiment, and after that there was no close season for men. It will be the same in the Philippines. The soldiers will find the rains a nuisance, no doubt, but energy makes courage water-proof, and there is no reason to fear ill-health more in the field than in the towns. If the Tagalogs find themselves hard pressed just when they are expecting a long rest and a chance to re-organize their shattered forces, the effect on them will be excellent—at least from the American point of view.—[New York Times.

THE DAWN OF PEACE.

Put off, put off your mail, O kings,
And beat your brands to dust!
Your hands must learn a surer grasp,
Your hearts a better trust.

Oh, bend aback the lance's point,
And break the helmet bar;
A noise is in the morning wind,
But not the note of war.

Upon the grassy mountain paths
The glittering hosts increase—
They come! They come! How fair their feet!
They come who publish peace.

And victory, fair victory,
Our enemies are our!
For all the clouds are clasped in light,
And all the earth with flowers.

Aye, still depressed and dim with dew;
But wait a little while,
And with the radiant deathless rose
The wilderness shall smile.

And every tender, living thing
Shall feed by streams of rest;
Nor lamb shall from the flock be lost,
Nor nursling from the nest.

When earth was an enchanted land.

That he had loved in former days;

And blush at all his words of praise.

Yes, she was gone! They stood before
The altar many years ago—
Up stairs he heard her fitful snore—
The fire was dim, the light was low.

THE SHAMROCK'S OWNER.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the challenger for the "America's" cup, is thus described by Mr. W. J. Henderson in the Outlook's annual "Recreation Number:" "Sir Thomas is a picturesque figure in the field of sport, or, for that matter, in any field. He is now about 45 years of age. He was born in Belfast, of poor parents, and began life in a very humble manner. He started as the proprietor of a small grocery store in Glasgow; he slept in the store, swept it himself, sold his own goods, and, so far as was possible, delivered them too. Although he was not a Yankee, he conceived the scheme of hiring persons to pretend to be buyers of goods at his store. The result was that he apparently had a crowded place of business, and this brought him real customers. In a short time he was able to open another store, and then he hired persons to go with arms full of bundles from one to the other. By such devices he soon built up a large trade, and he then began to extend his business to other towns. He made a specialty of cheese and coffee, and as he really sold good cheese and coffee, he held the trade which he attracted to his stores. He now has a great wholesale house in London, and between two and three hundred stores in various parts of the United Kingdom. His knighthood was conferred upon him by the Queen as one of the honors distributed at the time of her jubilee. Sir Thomas about the same time gave $250,000 to the Princess of Wales Hospital Fund. He is a very liberal man, and has subscribed $50,000 for the support of cheap eating-houses in London.

The small pox scare in Fall River is abating. No new cases have been found in some days. All the sick have been removed to the contagious hospital and the premises where they lived thoroughly disinfected, and the health department feels that the worst is over and the disease, as far as Fall River is concerned, is under control.

A cablegram from Manila to the Navy Department states that Commander Seth Ackley, who only recently went out to take command of the United States steamer Concord, has fallen ill, and been sent to the naval hospital at Yokohama.

FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1899.

A LABOR OUTBREAK IN THE SOUTH.

The mob spirit in relation to the negro population of Georgia appears to be dominant among the whites. This is as might be expected, for if it do once permitted to gain sway in any community it proves an instinct that grows and flourishes almost without measure. There is no possibility, from the very nature of the case, that mobocracy shall be triumphant in one direction without a tendency to assert itself in all others. For the people who cannot submit to organized government at all points are not likely to be good citizens in any direction where their interests or prejudices are interfered with.

It has been claimed that the mob spirit in the South, including lynching in its worst and most barbarous aspects, is prevalent only with regard to extreme cases, where the moral instincts of the community are violently outraged. But further developments go to show that such is far from being the case. Reference has recently been made to what is known as a "labor conflict" in Griffin, Ga., wherein the lords of creation are lynching the colored people for exercising the right to work, and are mobbing them because of their attempts to earn an honest living, while guilty of no other offence.

It appears from later and more detailed information that several colored employes in one of the cotton mills in that city have been dragged from their homes and cruelly flogged and otherwise abused by the mob styling itself the "Laborers' Union Band," and have been given warning that, on any attempt to return to work, they will be still more severely punished. Notice has been served, also, on the overseers and owners of the property that they must cease to employ negro labor or suffer the consequences, which are not fully defined, though ominously hinted at.

The extent of the feeling displayed was not at first fully given to Northern newspapers and would have been scarcely appreciated. It now appears that the day before this outrage was perpetrated the doors of all the mills and factories and several stables and stores in the town were placarded with a notice, written in a bold and legible hand, reading as follows: "To the negro and to whom it may concern: The object of this is to put you on notice that after next Saturday night no negro will be allowed to ask for employment at either of the following named places: The two cotton mills, the oil mill, the machine shops, wood shops, wood yards, or to do any carpenter work on any public or private building, or to drive any public drays, delivery wagons, or bread wagons in and around Griffin. We trust the managers and merchants will discharge the negroes promptly and fill their places with white labor, which can easily be done, and save us the trouble of 'going through' the negro, for we will certainly do so with a deaf ear to his groans and petitions."

It will be seen that no charges are made against the blacks whatever. The men who are employing them say that the persons who were so outrageously treated on the occasion referred to are quiet and peaceable residents of the town, engaging in no controversies and giving no cause for offence except trying to earn a livelihood by honest work. The authors of the notice and of what was practically by an outrage virtually admit this, and simply declare in effect that the negro has no right to earn an honest livelihood, that he must give up his employment, no matter how satisfactory his services may have been, and that his efforts to fit himself for skilled labor are not to be tolerated. But it is not the negro alone who is insulted and threatened. His employers are notified that they must not hire him any longer, and that if they do so they will suffer for it. The employer's right to engage colored labor is denied: the mill owner is told that he must join hands with the mob in suppressing negro competition in industrial pursuits, and if these admonitions are disobeyed the superior white leaders of this inhuman movement will deal with the negro in their own peculiar way, "with a deaf ear to his groans and petitions."

And yet Georgia is trying to induce capitalists to come into that state and establish business, and to encourage such immigration in general as has made the West so prosperous. Nobody holds the reputable white citizens of Georgia directly responsible for this atrocious assault upon industry and progress. Governor Candler and other officials are trying to protect the honest negro toilers of the state in all their rights. But there rests upon the people of the entire state a moral, constructive responsibility for the whole affair. From denying the colored man's right to a trial by jury it is a short step to a denial of his right to work. To deny his right to work is to deny his right to live. The next step leads to anarchy and massacre in the name of the white man's supremacy. The state of Georgia must arise in its majesty and not only denounce affairs of this kind but make them as impossible as they are in other civilized countries.

FOREST RESERVES.

The agitation for the protection of our forests is bearing fruit in almost every direction. The state of Massachusetts continues to set an excellent example for the rest of the country by reserving large tracts of land which possess great natural beauty for the enjoyment of future generations. Greylock, the noble mountain in the northwestern corner of the commonwealth, was threatened with the loss of its charms a few years ago by the reckless assaults of lumbermen, who saw in the extensive forests along its slopes only so much wood. Happily, there were public-spirited citizens who recognized the shame which it would be to their generation if these mountainsides should be swept bare, and a movement was organized which, with the cooperation of the legislature, ended in the permanent acquisition for the community of a great tract of land.

Greylock being secure, Wachusett, a fine mountain near the centre of the state, next invited attention, and the state will soon come into possession of 10,000 acres of land there, covering not only the summit, but also its approaches on every side. The readiness of a democracy thus to spend large sums of public money in the interest of beauty and taste is one of the most hopeful things in the development of our institutions.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

The trust inflation is receiving something of a check as a speculative grab, and it is nothing more or better than that. It is now reported that the great plow trust, with a proposed capital of $50,000,000, has fallen through, because of inability to raise money on the securities and pay cash to those manufacturers who do not care to give over their plant in exchange, except for ready cash. These men can see plainly that the inflation is too wild to be valid, and that sooner or later there must come an explosion. The proposed threshing machine trust, capitalized at $75,000,000, has been abandoned for the same reason. These exorbitant figures represented altogether too much water and could not be expected to commend themselves to men strictly honest and of business ability, such as are most of the agricultural manufacturers. These may be taken as forerunners of a general collapse of the trust in the near future, though the bugbear may continue long enough to make a political issue in the next Presidential election. The trust business has been so plainly overdone that it will in the end defeat itself without being taken into politics.

Attention is called to the fact that Cashier Hough of the Cocheco bank, who is now among the missing, neither drank nor smoked, and some people appear to be making themselves merry over the fact that with even these good qualities he has turned out to be one of the greatest scoundrels of the times. But Mr. Hough was a confirmed gambler, and some or all of the directors and depositors must have known it. The situation grows worse from day to day, as the condition of things becomes better understood, and it will not be strange if the loss foots up $75,000 before the investigation closes. In the meantime the rascal has managed to keep himself in hiding, and it is suspected that he is on the way to one of the South American cities.

At the rhododendron show held in Boston this week Newport appears to have been represented by Robert Laurie, gardener for Cornelius Vanderbilt, and by Robert Hunnick, who made an exhibit from the villa of F. W. Vanderbilt. Of course no one can successfully compete in the line of rhododendrons with Mr. H. H. Hunnewell of Wellesley, but Mr. Hunnick showed excellent specimens and received cordial recognition, and Mr. Laurie took first premium on an Araucaria Bidwillii. The exhibition was very fine, including a large variety of choice plants.

Esterhazy and De Clam, the master spirits of the monstrous conspiracy against Dreyfus, may by this time regret that they did not follow the example of their fellow-conspirator, Henry, and remove themselves from the face of the earth. But their continued existence is instructive as showing to what depths of infamy a pair of conscienceless rogues can descend when they try.

A little while ago Aguinaldo wanted our forces to wait until he could assemble the Filipino congress and take their counsel. Word comes now that the congress was called together, and that he has dissolved it, proclaiming himself sole dictator, which he has virtually been from the beginning. What effect this may have on the general conduct of the war remains to be seen.

Modern thieves, unlike the celebrated Pirates of Penzance, are no respecters of persons, as is seen in the fact that they have been breaking into the cottage of General and Mrs. Bullington Booth during their absence on the Pacific coast, and making themselves quite free with the contents.

The plow trust may have fallen through for want of customers to purchase the inflated stock, but we incline to the opinion that the dealers who raised prices on the strength of the expectations that the trust might win will forget to reduce them to the old standard.

The Mail and Express thinks that the Democratic contest for the Speakership is about as exciting as a fool race with an empty cider barrel as the prize.

The Marion Clark kidnappers are to be arraigned in New York and have been held in $10,000 each for trial. This looks like business on the part of the court, and when Baby Marion grows up she will learn that she was very highly valued in her infancy.

It is quoted in some of the newspapers that we promised to give Cuba a free and popular government, and have now started off with a press censorship instead. There is no conflict between the promise and the fulfillment in this fact. Freedom and liberty do not include permission to commit all the crimes of the decalogue, even in act or speech.

It is predicted that the end of the present hot wave is in sight. Here's hoping the weather prophet may speak the truth this time!

The Vermonters propose to give Admiral Dewey a rousing welcome when he comes to his home in Montpelier.

It is supposed that Dreyfus will sail for France today. Much joy go with him.

THE QUEEN AND THE POPE.

Leo XIII takes a great interest in all the festivities in connection with the queen's birthday, and has ordered his private secretary, Mgr. Angeli, to keep him posted in regard to the fetes. "The sovereigns of our generation are getting very few," he said, "and I always hear of honors to those who have lived long with sympathetic pleasure." The pope has, however, a specially kind feeling toward Queen Victoria. He has never forgotten the visit he paid to England and his audience with the queen at the end of 1845. Leo XIII, then simple Mgr. Pecci, was leaving Brussels, where he had been nearly three years as Papal Nuncio, and was to a great extent induced to go to England by Baron von Stockmar, the great friend of Leopold I and Queen Victoria, and who held the young prelate in the highest esteem. The audience and reception which he received from the queen and the prince consort impressed Mgr. Pecci's imagination so much that he wrote a long and enthusiastic letter to his relatives, and the missive is kept as one of the precious relics at the palace at Carpineto, Leo's birthplace. In the letter he describes the personal appearance of the young sovereign, her chief beauty, according to his impression, being her magnificent and profound eyes, and what seems to have affected him above all was the affection reigning between the young royal couple.

What is not generally known is the effect this visit had on the career of Mgr. Pecci. On leaving Brussels King Leopold gave him an autograph letter for Pope Gregory XVI, in which, speaking of the young priest, he said that "seldom have I met such devotion to duty, good intentions and royal conduct." Such a letter could hardly have failed to procure him the red hat, but through the delay caused by his visit to England he arrived in Rome after the commencement of Gregory XVI's last illness. The succeeding pope, Pius XI, had as secretary of state the famous Cardinal Antonelli, who personally disliked Mgr. Pecci. The latter had thus to wait until 1854 before being raised to the purple.—[Rome despatch to London Pall Mall Gazette.

GOOD, BAD AND INDIFFERENT INSECTS.

An insect census has just been taken on purely scientific lines with a view to determine as far as it is possible which insects are a boon and a blessing to mankind and which are the reverse.

According to the census insects are to be classified as good, bad and indifferent; the good insects number 116 families, the bad insects amount to 113 families, while the indifferent insects, who could not for one reason or another satisfactorily answer all the questions on their census papers, and must therefore for the present be looked upon as doubtful characters, reach a total of 72 families.

No fewer than 112 families of the bad or injurious insects feed upon cultivated plants and crops, doing damage to and devouring thousands of pounds' worth of vegetable produce annually, gobbling up our spring cabbage and sweetest young peas, etc., in the most ruthless fashion, while the one hundred and thirteenth family is parasitic upon and causes much harm to warm-blooded animals.

Of the good or beneficial insects, 79 families devote themselves to the destruction of their wicked, vegetable-devouring brethren, which they accomplish in a most satisfactory and wholesale manner, while of the remaining useful insects, 32 families act as scavengers, clearing away with great rapidity all sorts of decaying vegetable and animal matter, two families aid us as pollenizers, and three form food for our eatable fishes.—[London Mail.

MATE BRAM STUDYING NAVIGATION.

Mate Bram, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of Captain Charles I. Nash of barkentine Herbert Fuller, retains his confidence which he maintained during his two protracted trials that something will occur to prove his innocence of that shocking crime. So confident is he of being freed that he is studying navigation. At the state prison he is regarded as a model prisoner. He has few callers, and when he is not engaged with the other prisoners in the prison routine he can be found at his books.

The sailor witnesses in the case are still in the custody of the government, living in idleness at a seaside resort at government expense, and receiving witness fees of a dollar a day each, with small prospect of being soon released.—[Boston Transcript.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 9, 8 A. M.—For New England—Showers tonight and probably Saturday; variable winds.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, June 9, 8 A. M.—For Boston and vicinity—Generally fair weather tonight; probably showers Saturday morning, followed by fair; cooler tonight; variable winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The chief feature of the weather today is the heavy precipitation in parts of the central and lower Mississippi valley and the Southwest. Almost a torrential rain has fallen in southern Kansas, Dodge City reporting 5.76 inches as the amount since 8 a. m. yesterday. This came principally in the form of a thunderstorm, and was probably local in character. Generally fair weather has prevailed in the Northwest; scattered showers have occurred in the lake regions, the Ohio valley and Virginia. The conditions this morning are unsettled in the central portions of the country, the Ohio valley and the lake regions, with rain continuing in parts of those districts. There is, however, no well defined storm centre within the limits of observation. The warm weather is passing slowly eastward, and is followed by decidedly lower temperatures in the lake regions. Increasing cloudiness is reported in New England, with conditions becoming unsettled.

TIMOTHY P. CROWLEY.

Death of the Well Known Shipyard Owner and Contractor.

Mr. Timothy P. Crowley died of pneumonia at his home on Thames street, yesterday afternoon, after an illness of only seven days, during a part at least of which little hope was entertained of his recovery. Mr. Crowley had not been feeling in the best of health for some time past, but had been about the shipyard and attending to business much the same as usual until confined to his room.

Mr. Crowley was born in Ireland but came to this country when a mere lad, and learned his trade of ship carpenter at Greenpoint, where he worked for some time. He then worked in New Jersey and New York, and for the past fourteen years or so he had been employed about this city, Fall River and Providence. About six years ago, when Mr. F. P. Sands purchased the old Cottrell shipyard, he did so to give Mr. Crowley an opportunity to build up a first-class yard, and since then the deceased had done wonders to improve the plant, which is now probably the best of its kind on the coast between Boston and New York. Besides establishing a first-class plant, he also built up a good business and gave such general satisfaction that vessels, especially yachts, came here from all along the coast to be hauled out and repaired. He had besides done a great deal of wharf building, and general work along the bay and at other places.

He was a thorough workman, one who understood his business in all its branches, and who believed in doing nothing but first-class work. He treated all his customers alike, and a fisherman received as good service as a yachtsman. He was a worker and a hustler, but always a man, and one who made friends with all who had business dealings with him. After years of hard work he had his plant here in such order and had created such a trade among owners of vessels that the business was in fine shape, and work was going on all the time.

Mr. Crowley was one of those men whose death is a loss to Newport. He brought business here, and was one of those energetic men whose death leaves a gap not easily filled. Besides running the shipyard, he was interested with Mr. J. K. Sullivan in tug H. T. Sisson. He leaves a widow, who was his second wife, and two sons by a former marriage.

It seems likely now that the matter will be settled, if it can be settled, in the courts, which will define the respective rights of the rival congregations, if they have any rights.

A CURIOUS WILL CASE.

A curious case will come before the Vienna law courts shortly. Some weeks ago a young doctor and a girl of nineteen put an end to their lives in one of the suburban hotels of Vienna. Having no money left, they bequeathed their jewelry, which they described as "imitation," and a watch and chain, specified as Abyssinian gold, to the chambermaid who waited on them. The latter, not at all delighted with this worthless and ill-omened finery, handed it over to one of her subordinates. Then followed the discovery that the trinkets, so far from being counterfeit, were genuine, and of the costliest description, their value amounting to no less than a thousand pounds sterling. Remorse not unnaturally overtook the original legatee, who had so recklessly parted with her bequest, and she has entered an action against her friend to recover the goods or their worth on the ground that the gift was made through ignorance.—[London Chronicle.

CARE OF THE CONFEDERATE DEAD.

We think a very large majority of the rank and file of living Confederate veterans would prefer that the South—especially the noble Southern womanhood—shall always have charge of the graves of the dead who wore the gray. But they would, we may believe, be quite willing for the federal government to take charge of the many Confederates who are buried in the North. If the United States Congress were to take action to provide for the caring for the graves of these men who fought so bravely for "the lost cause" it would be kindly done and would be grateful to the South, we may not doubt.—[Wilmington (N. C.) Messenger.

CHILDREN SEE THE SHIPS.

Newport Scholars Go Today; Boston Poor Children to Have a Chance.

A special meeting of the school committee was held Wednesday afternoon to consider an offer from Major T. K. Gibbs to send the school children on board the ships of the North Atlantic squadron. It was voted to accept the offer, and arrangements were yesterday made by Superintendent Baker for the children to go. The pupils of the First Intermediate and the various grammar grades were selected, it being thought that any below those grades were too small to properly care for themselves.

The first division, consisting of 200 children from the Coddington building on Mill street, under Principal Campbell, marched down this noon, and at 12:30 boarded steamer H. S. Caswell and were taken to the New York. On the Caswell Major Gibbs had a lot of flags, and each scholar was supplied with one on boarding the boat. The second detachment, 100 from the Mill street school and all from the Potter school, left at 1:10, and thereafter, at intervals of 40 minutes, the Calvert school, the Cranston Avenue school and the Lenthal and Carey schools, in that order, went over in the Caswell. The high school pupils will probably go Monday. The teachers of the various rooms accompanied their pupils, who made a very creditable showing marching through the streets to the wharf.

The first two boat loads were landed on the New York, and Captain Chadwick told Major Gibbs that he would send them ashore in the ship's boats when they had seen all they wanted, thus affording them a treat they did not expect. The next trips of the Caswell were made to the Indiana, where Captain Taylor saw that the youngsters had a good chance to see a first-class fighting ship.

The squadron is expected to sail from here next Thursday for Boston, to add glory to the celebration of Bunker Hill day, the sailors of the several ships participating in the parade at Charlestown. On the following Tuesday Mrs. Picking, wife of Rear Admiral Picking, will give a reception at the navy yard to Admiral Sampson and officers of the fleet. It is not known how long the ships will remain at Boston, but during the stay there arrangements will be made for a visit of the poor children of the city to the vessels.

A short time ago Mr. W. A. Twombly conceived the idea of a "children's day" on the fleet; that the children's ages should range from eight to sixteen years, and that those should be selected whose parents were absolutely unable to pay the cost of transportation to the vessels and return. With these ideas in mind Mr. Twombly waited on Governor Wolcott, who was heartily in favor of the scheme. Adjutant General Dalton, Speaker Bates and Commandant Picking of the navy yard were also seen, and each heartily endorsed it, and promised to assist in all ways possible. Secretary Long's approval was also obtained, and popular subscriptions are being made to the fund to carry out the idea.

The plan is to concentrate the children on some wharf easily accessible to the warships, and in addition to the expense of transporting them to and from the vessels electric car fares from the different sections must be provided. In order that there may be no confusion, tickets will be issued through the police stations, and possibly from the newspaper offices.

SPAIN'S LITTLE HELL.

Spain's rule, no matter where it has been exercised, has always been marked by atrocities that would not be countenanced by any civilized nation. Now that Cuba and the Philippines have been taken from her she is forced to confine her cruelties to the few small islands that are left.

One of these, Fernando Po, an island lying off the coast of the Dutch Kamerooms, just where the west coast of Africa stopping in its eastward curve turns to the South again, seems to have been made the object of all the cruelties of which Spain is past master.

This island is one of the most beautiful, and at the same time one of the most unhealthful in the world. Therefore, it has been chosen by Spain as a fit place to send her exiled political prisoners.

When, not very long ago, Spanish ship Larache was reported at the Canaries bound for Fernando Po with 300 Filipino prisoners on board, those who knew of the horrors of the island shuddered at the thought of the imprisonment and the almost certain death which they would be forced to undergo.

While Spain was fighting the insurgents in Cuba and the Philippines she sent a batch of 271 Cubans and Filipinos to Fernando Po. In the course of the last two years of this 271, 191 have died, 46 have been pardoned and 37 still remain prisoners on the island.

Of these survivors 15 are fed by the government, receiving two cups of rice and a little meat each day. The others have to get their food the best way they can.

The 360 Filipinos who have now been added to the island convicts had been prisoners in Spain, or in some of the islands belonging to her near her coast before they were sent out to "Spain's Little Hell." They were evidently sent to Fernando Po with the idea that in that far-off place they would be so lost to the world that no questions would be asked as to what had become of them.

At Fernando Po the convicts are huddled together in a miserable mass, men, women and children being thrown together indiscriminately, without food, without water, without any ventilation and with nothing but misery and squalor staring them in the face. It is small wonder that so many of them are taken with the fever and die. The wonder is that any of them escape.

Spain keeps a force of soldiers on the island, recruiting partly from Spanish prisons. They are of the same class as the guerrillas whose bloody work in Cuba brought disgrace on the Spanish name.

TELLING STORIES TO CHILDREN.

When one speaks of telling stories to the little people, prose narratives seem to be commonly understood, and as commonly used, but there is no mistake greater than to suppose that children are not susceptible to the charms of poetry. They care more for poetry, on the contrary, than the majority of grown people, whether for the melody, the rhythm, the rhymes, the short lines, the simplicity and picturesqueness of expression, or for all these reasons together, which make it a thing pleasantly different from common speech. Goethe advised that every child should see a pretty picture and hear a beautiful poem every day, and if we would not banish the charm of poetry from mature life it behooves us to follow his advice and subject the child to its influence at the time of greatest susceptibility.

We must beware, however, of giving a one-sided development by confining ourselves too much to one branch of literature; we must include in our repertory some well-selected myths, fairy stories which are pure and spiritual in tone, and a fable now and then. Nature stories, hero tales, animal anecdotes, occasional narratives about good, wholesome children, neither prigs nor infant villains, plenty of fine poetry, as has been said, and, for the older ones of the family, legends, allegories, and historic happenings. A large stock of stories is not essential for little children. They feel, as Bulwer said, the beauty and the holiness that dwell in the customary and the old; and they are well pleased—and it is best that it should be so—with hearing the same old favorites repeated again and again, in song or in story, from their mothers' lips.—[Ladies' Home Journal.

THE PHILHARMONIC.

Review of the Past and Plans for the Future---Annual Election.

The annual meeting of the Philharmonic Society, held last evening in the Natural History rooms, proved a long and in the main a harmonious session, but although much was accomplished in the line of planning for the coming year, important business was left for some future meeting, or to be disposed of by the executive committee. There were no formal reports, but the several officers each had a few words to say concerning their lines of work for the season just ended, the president speaking more at length, congratulating the society on its two successful concerts for 1898-99, repeating words of commendation from the soloists, and making for the year to come a number of suggestions, later covered more in detail in the address of the musical conductor.

Perhaps the chief interest of the evening centered in the report of the nominating committee—Rev. G. Herbert Patterson, Miss Jeannette H. Swasey and Miss Alice G. Banning—recently appointed by the president. The chairman spoke at length concerning a number of changes that seemed to the committee necessary to simplify the running of the society and to relieve the pressure heretofore brought so heavily upon the conductor, especially as the dates for the concerts approached. Among these changes were the severance of the offices of secretary and treasurer, the nomination of an additional member for the intermission committee, making it consist of five persons, instead of four as in the three years past, and the creation of two committees—one to attend to details connected with public performances of the society, and one for the acquisition of members, the associate list being drawn largely from for this committee.

Considerable discussion was brought forth by the more radical departures, but the changes were made without a dissenting vote. Two members of the executive committee, Miss Mary G. Curley and Mr. J. F. McKay, were retired by virtue of expiration of terms, but the number of ex-officio members being now five instead of four, as heretofore, there was only one vacancy, which was filled by the nomination and election of Miss Elizabeth W. Hunter, to serve two years. The list of officers for 1899-1900, therefore, is as follows:

President—Frederick Bradley.
Vice President—Gardner S. Perry.
Secretary—Mrs. Lida S. Sherman.
Treasurer—Mrs. William H. Walcott.

Executive Committee—The president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and musical conductor, ex officio; J. F. Albro, G. W. Cutter and Mrs. J. P. Peckham, for one year, to finish unexpired terms; Miss Elizabeth W. Hunter, for two years, term to expire in June, 1901.

Musical Director—Alfred G. Langley.
Librarian—Alfred W. Holland.
Historian—Mrs. Alfred G. Langley.

Intermission Committee—Mrs. T. W. Freeborne, Miss Eliza S. Allan, Miss Josephine A. Chase, Miss Sarah M. Bailey, Miss Hattie J. Hayes.

Concert Committee—G. S. Perry, F. A. Fredericks, G. Herbert Patterson, Jr., Miss Elizabeth W. Hunter, Mrs. Ogham G. Crandall, Alfred G. Langley, ex officio.

Membership Committee—Richard Bliss, Mrs. E. P. Robinson, Miss Anna F. Hunter, Miss Harriet A. Saunders, Miss Elizabeth H. Swinburne, Miss Bessie Sherman, C. F. Barker, Mrs. Harriet L. Stevens, Miss Caroline Wilks, James F. Marden, Jr.

After the completion of the slate the president announced an intermission, during which ice cream and cake were served and an enjoyable social time was spent. The members then listened to an address by the musical conductor, Mr. Alfred G. Langley, than whom no one has worked more assiduously for the cause of good music in Newport. The address was of great interest and was received with marked attention.

DEATHS IN MAY.

The number of deaths reported to the committee on health and sanitation as occurring in the city of Newport in May was 26, the same as last year and practically the average for three years in that month. These deaths, in an estimated population of 21,500, are equivalent to an annual rate of 14.51 in each thousand inhabitants, less than the lowest annual rate in the last three years.

The 26 deaths were from 17 different causes, the largest from any one cause being three each from carcinoma, pulmonalis phthisis and senile asthenia or old age. There were two each from heart disease, peritonitis and cerebral thrombosis, and one each from alcoholism, croup, epithelioma, fatty degeneration of the heart, intestinal obstruction, acute laryngitis, lockjaw, myocarditis, pneumonia, softening of the brain and senile debility.

Of the decedents 11 were males and 15 females; 24 whites and two colored; 5 single, 12 married and 9 widowed.

Three were one year and under five years of age, six 20 and under 40 years, five 40 and under 60 years, seven 60 and under 80 years, and five over 80 years. The oldest was 92 years, 11 months and 20 days, and the average age 52 years, 5 months and 19 days.

Six were natives of Newport, four of other parts of Rhode Island, four of other parts of the United States, eleven of other countries, and the nativity of one was not given in the death return.

The deaths occurred in the following sections of the city: First ward, 7; Second, 5; Third, 2; Fourth, 5; Fifth, 4; Newport Hospital, 3. Five bodies were brought to Newport for interment. The interments for the month were as follows: Island cemetery, 5; St. Mary's, 5; City, 1; Common or Old, 5. Ten bodies were removed from the city for burial.

Six cases of scarlet fever, one of diphtheria and two of typhoid fever comprise the contagious diseases reported during the month.

GIFT FOR THE OLYMPIA.

An agreeable feature of the welcome that awaits the arrival of Admiral Dewey, his officers and men at New York will be the presentation of a gift from the city whose name the battleship Olympia bears. Instead of the trite presentation of a silver service, the form chosen for the tribute is a bronze panel, to be placed upon the forward turret in the space between the two big guns that did such effective service in Manila Bay. A magnificent figure of Victory occupies the centre of the panel. Her outstretched arms support a flowing scroll bearing the words, historically laconic, "Gridley, You May Fire When Ready." On either side of the draped figure, whose feet rest upon an orb, is the inscription, "From the citizens of Olympia and State of Washington. Greeting of Olympia to her namesake. MDCCCXCVIII."

The noble dignity of this design and its enduring character make it worthy for its prominent position, where it becomes a structural part of the armor of the ship. The conception reflects great credit upon the artists, D. C. French and Paul W. Morris. The bronze casting has just been finished and when polished will probably be placed on exhibition. Mr. James A. Haight of Olympia, former Assistant Attorney General of Washington, and one of the committee in charge of this greeting, after inspecting the work declares that he will be able to make a most gratifying report upon his return home.

HENDERSON OF IOWA.

A Man of Splendid Courage and Strong Will Power.

Colonel David Bremner Henderson of Dubuque, who has for 16 years represented his Iowa district in Congress, will be the Speaker of the next House, barring accidents, and will then have reached the highest office open to him in our government, since he was born in Scotland, and is therefore shut out by the constitution from the Presidency, even though he was brought to Illinois before he was six years old, from the Scotch village of Old Deer, where he was born.

As all of Colonel Henderson's public service of importance has been in the House of Representatives, which is very dear to him, he will be well content to round out his political career in the Speakership, which he, like Mr. Reed, regards as second only to the Presidency among the offices of the whole world.

Colonel Henderson, brevetted "general," according to the American custom, by reason of his personal popularity, has more personal friends in both houses of Congress than any of the other men mentioned for the Speakership, and none of them would have received as many congratulations of a perfectly sincere sort as are now being sent to him. The nick-name "Dave," by which he is so commonly known on the floor of the two houses, is a term of affection and no more indicates lack of respect than the "Tom" which is as commonly used for Mr. Reed.

But "Dave" Henderson and "Tom" Reed are very different men in many respects. Colonel Henderson, as one of Mr. Reed's most faithful and efficient lieutenants in the management of the House, would be the first to say that he is not the genius Mr. Reed is, and that he could never have done what Mr. Reed did if he had been elected Speaker when he first ran in the competition with Reed and McKinley at the opening of the Fiftieth Congress.

Colonel Henderson was a fine soldier, leaving the Iowa farm on which he was reared from the time his parents settled there in 1849, to enlist as a private in September, 1861, serving until he was discharged on account of the loss of his right leg as first lieutenant of company C, Twelfth Iowa infantry, February 26, 1863, and returning in June, 1864, to serve as colonel of the Forty-sixth Iowa infantry until the end of the war,but he was not a martinet and could never have been a "czar."

He is a man of splendid courage and of strong will power. I never think of him without admiring the pluck and grit that carried him through successive amputations of the stump of his leg two years ago without the use of anaesthetics, or the fine fortitude with which he has endured the pain of that wound when it became intense at many times. But, he is too kind and considerate to be tyrannical even in a moderate degree.

He is not of a judicial temperament, and can be very partisan in his emotional and enthusiastic way, but at the same time he is fair-minded and kind-hearted, and makes friends rather than enemies, even out of those whom he attacks in debate. He is absolutely honest, and as independent as a strict party man can be, and remarkably frank for a leader of the House.

These things have won him much admiration from his colleagues. They justly admire his eloquence, for he is one of the very best orators in the House, holding his own against all the new candidates for fame either in debate or in formal speechmaking. The Iowa delegation is the ablest and the most distinguished in the House, and Henderson is easily the leader of it in oratory, as in other departments of the work of the House.

He lays no claim to be a crack parliamentarian, although as a member of the committee on rules he has successfully managed on the floor of the House battles over special rules and orders involving a thorough knowledge of parliamentary practice as well as tactical ability. He has not been called to the chair often, but there is no doubt that he will preside with success.

It is, however, as a manager of measures in committee and on the floor, and as the spokesman of his party in debate, that Colonel Henderson has gained his distinction, and the tact, kindliness and courage which he has always shown in this work will be invaluable to him in the conferences of the Speaker's room, where most of the most important business of the Speaker is settled. Colonel Henderson's personal influence with members of all parties is so great that he will be able to manage this difficult part of his duties with a minimum of friction. It will be by persuasion and not by coercion that Speaker Henderson will manage his party and the House.

He will have very different relations to the Republican caucus from those of Speaker Reed, and although he will naturally be jealous for the prerogatives of the Speakership, he would yield more readily than Speaker Reed to a resumption by the caucus of powers delegated to the Speaker by the House involving the selection of the members of the committee on rules, the executive committee of the House, or even, as General Grosvenor has been vainly insisting, the appointment of all the committees.

Colonel Henderson, although faithfully supporting Speaker Reed in his general policy and not disposed to declare in interviews, like Sherman and Hopkins, that he would depart from it if elected Speaker, has sympathized more or less with the desire of many members for more individual freedom, and would probably be willing to make all reasonable concessions to those desiring modifications of the rules in practice.

Physically, Colonel Henderson is a fine specimen of a manly man, in spite of his loss of a leg. He is tall, sturdy, well formed and erect, like a soldier. He has a fine head, large, shapely and well thatched with gray hair, which tosses in the air when he is excited in speaking. His face is strong, and attractive, usually smiling with kindly feeling, though his bright, big eyes can snap fire when he is angry. Under a heavy gray, military mustache he has a firm mouth and a strong jaw.

Colonel Henderson is too honest and too generous to be rich, although he is at the head of a prosperous law firm in Dubuque, and he has never kept house or entertained in Washington. He and his wife and daughter have pleasant quarters at the Normandie Hotel, but they have never gone into fashionable society, and probably have no taste for it.

Speaker Reed will be very much surprised to hear that Colonel Henderson is to succeed him, for he wanted and expected Representative Sherman to be his successor. He did not intend that his determination to leave the House and go into practice in New York city should become known until after he returned from Europe, and therefore did not anticipate that the Speakership contest would begin until he returned; and although he was chagrined to find that the news did get out, notwithstanding he had withheld his resignation in order to keep it quiet, he hoped and expected that the Speakership campaign would drag along throughout the summer without coming anywhere near a conclusion, so that when he returned it would still be undecided.

This was what all the leading managers hoped for, and the success of Colonel Henderson is as surprising as it is sudden. But he was more popular and Hopkins less strong than the managers had estimated, and the movement which they had so carefully planned got away from them, forcing Hopkins to withdraw and giving Henderson practical possession of the Western delegations, which, with his Eastern support, barring accidents, will give him the Speakership.—[Henry MacFarland, in Boston Herald.

SHIPWRECKS AT THE MANACLES.

I have been at some pains to collect information as to the number of casualties that have taken place latterly within two or three miles of the Manacles. One fisherman, who is still in middle life, recalls 36. His list, however, is incomplete, for more than 50 have happened during the past 30 years. Of these, considerably more than half may be classed as total wrecks. To turn to the life-boat records, it seems that the Porthoustock boat, which, by the way, was sent to the handiest in consequence of three quickly ensuing wrecks, has since the year 1872 been on active service 16 times, and has effected the rescue of 112 persons. The same records show that 119 lives were lost from the vessels to which the life-boat went out. There were at least 16 other wrecks during that period, resulting in the loss of 44 lives, to which the life-boat could render no assistance. In some instances, the crews rowed ashore in their own boats. In others, a hurricane from the east made a launch impossible.

When one looks at this terrible array of facts, it may appropriately be asked if the means of averting disaster and of saving life are adequate in the neighborhood. (A life-boat certainly exists at the Manacles, but it is of so little use that it hardly deserves to be mentioned. Next there exists at Coverack, two and a half miles from the Manacles, a very good coastguard station. The men attached to this station have, by their untiring vigilance, saved many ships from destruction. Only a single coastguard is stationed at Porthoustock, but previous to the wreck of the Mohegan it was decided to increase the number to three, and to erect cottages for them in the cove. It may be pointed out, however, that from Porthoustock only a limited view of the sea is to be obtained, and none at all of the Manacles. Persons thoroughly acquainted with the situation are most strongly convinced of the eminent desirability of stationing these men on Manacle point. Had they been there last October, they would probably have been able to signal the Mohegan in time to prevent her from being stranded.

Next, the fact that on the night of the wreck of the Mohegan the rocket apparatus at Coverack had to be laboriously pushed by men up a great hill directs attention to the unfavorable position in which the machine is placed. Save in the actual cove itself there is no road along the shore from Coverack in either direction. In fully nine cases out of ten a steep ascent has to be made with the apparatus before it can be conveyed to any point outside a half-mile radius. As horses are a scarce commodity in Coverack human labor must be employed. Obviously the best place for the apparatus is St. Keverne, where horses are always to be had, whence by an easy descent any part of the neighboring coast may be reached. In the great blizzard of 1891, when four vessels were wrecked in two days, the delay in getting the rocket apparatus to the scenes of the catastrophes is locally held to be responsible for much unnecessary loss of life.

Finally, it might be suggested to the lifeboat institution that a boat stationed at Coverack would be likely to prove useful. Occasionally very serious wrecks, indeed, accompanied by great loss of life, occur at St. Keverne. Four wrecks alone within the last 90 years have resulted in the drowning of no fewer than 470 persons. In such cases one lifeboat is manifestly insufficient. Boats coming from a distance, however brave and skilful their crews may be, cannot render much service. It is not possible for men who have not intimate knowledge of the Manacles to take their craft safely at night through all the intricacies of the treacherous waters. At Coverack there are enough experienced fishermen, acquainted, by reason of their avocations, with every rock and cove and shoal and headland in the neighborhood, to man a boat. These men in a lifeboat might have been able to save many of the unfortunate passengers and crew of the Mohegan, who for a time were kept afloat by lifeboats only to be dashed finally against the cliffs and boulders of the inhospitable coast.

Perhaps, if the proposed coastguard station were established on Manacle point instead of in Porthoustock cove, if the rocket apparatus were removed to St. Keverne, and if a lifeboat were sent to Coverack, the force of the plea for a lightship at the Manacles would be greatly diminished.—[London Times.

Among the newly-discovered American trees described by Professor Sargent is an elm, which has been planted in some Southern towns as shade trees. It is about 40 to 50 feet high, and 2 to 3 feet in diameter, flowering in autumn. It has been named Ulmus serotina.

NEW YORK, June 9. Wall Street—The stock market opened irregular, with Burlington at 131⅝, Manhattan 111⅛, Missouri Pacific 42½, Brooklyn Transit 114½, Northern Pacific 47½, Northern Pacific preferred 76½, People's Gas 118¼, Rock Island 112¾, Sugar 151, St. Paul 125⅝, Tobacco 98, Union Pacific 44½, Union Pacific preferred 76, Federal Steel 60⅜, Federal Steel preferred 82⅛.

10—The movement of prices was conflicting at the opening, the principal activity being shown in the specialties, Brooklyn Transit, Rock Island, Manhattan and Anaconda rose sharply, the latter 4⅜, Continental Tobacco dropped over a point, and Steel & Wire, after a fractional gain, fell over a point, Sugar also turned downward after a small opening gain.

11—The short interests became alarmed at yesterday's exhibition of strength and diversified dealings, which seemed to indicate a wide support and renewed outside demand. Accordingly stocks were in active demand at the outset, and Sugar and Metropolitan were marked up 3, Manhattan 2⅝ and Brooklyn Transit 1⅝. Good gains were also shown by the standard stocks and minor properties. The demand fell off after a time, and the market developed a pronounced sagging tendency on professional hammering. Continental Tobacco dropped 2⅝ and Sugar 1½. The market became dull at the decline.

ROYALTY UNDER GUARD.

Means by Which Crowned Heads are Protected from Injury.

Guarding the person of a sovereign is a matter of some importance, and nearly every European ruler has his or her special body of guards, whose sole duty is to study the safety of their regal employer. In civilized nations is this especially the case when anarchists and plotters of various kinds are the chief enemies to be feared. Those who rule over nations bound up in uncivilization scarcely need body guards, inasmuch as even a look may mean death to a subject when life is regarded as such a trifle. In Europe, however, things are different, and every king or queen is protected by a certain body of armed men.

The queen is guarded in many ways. To begin with, she is always shadowed by a special body of detectives, who follow her about incognito and set a watch upon every suspicious person. The real body guard of a British sovereign consists of the Beefeaters, that venerable corps whose quaint dress attracts the attention of all visitors to the Tower of London. Henry VIII founded them for this purpose, and they have since existed as the body guard of every sovereign.

When Her Majesty is traveling in London she is generally accompanied by a squadron of Royal Horse Guards or Life Guards, in the absence of the Beefeaters, who now fulfill their duties more in name than anything else, except as keepers of the tower. In the diamond jubilee procession a guard was furnished by both British and colonial troops.

The czar is perhaps the most difficult person to look after in the whole world, owing to the deep-rooted plots which are constantly being formed against his life by nihilists. His chief body guard consists of a number of Corsican police, veterans who have grown hoary headed in the detective service. They are never engaged by the Russian court until they have attained a state of ability far above that usually reached by a detective, and there is no Scotland Yard official who can claim the success achieved by one of these men. They are all Corsicans' bred and born, for the cunning and craft of the inhabitants of that island are proverbial, and furthermore they are said to be the only people who can strike fear into the heart of the nihilist. Their work chiefly lies in the kitchen and household generally; when he is traveling the czar seeks protection from a special corps furnished by the national guard.

Another crowned head in constant peril is the Sultan Abdul-Hamid. He is, however, somewhat comforted by the thought that he has a corps of men, known as Janissaries, always about him. They taste his food, and guard his going out and his coming in, even to examining his bed before he gets into it. They are nothing more than fanatics, with so great a lust for blood that they will kill any one or anything upon the least provocation, which is, perhaps, the reason why their august master employs them. It is a common saying in Turkey that any one who shows the slightest sign of madness can get into the Janissaries. Up to about seven years ago the sultan always employed Albanians to guard him, but one day he imagined that he had cause to doubt their fidelity, so he beheaded some, imprisoned others and sent the rest about their business.

The Swiss used to be utilized as guards by nearly every sovereign in Europe on account of their fidelity, but now the pope is the only person who seeks their aid. He has two bodies of Swiss soldiery on duty at the Vatican, one in the daytime and the other at night.

For peculiar methods of being looked after perhaps the Queen of Spain comes first. She has no body guard in the daytime unless she is traveling, when she is accompanied by a body of mounted troops.

At night a special corps, known as the Monteros de Espinosa, guard the palace from midnight till 7 in the morning, when they are dismissed till the same hour the following night. One of these men is always placed in the corridor outside her bed room door throughout the silent watches of the night.

In conclusion the feeble guardians of the King of Siam must be mentioned. They consist of 80 well-trained Amazons, dressed in fantastic garb, some of whom always follow His Majesty even when he goes in the grounds for a walk. Their fidelity is proverbial, and their strength almost superhuman—so much so that they can cleave a man in two with one blow from the long knife they carry in their girdles.—[Tit-Bits.

HAZARD MEMORIAL SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

The pupils of the Hazard Memorial School held their annual entertainment in the school hall last evening, under the direction of the sisters of charity connected with the parish. The exercises were of a varied character, showing the result of careful training by the teachers and diligent labor by the pupils. The program included marches, choruses, drills, recitations, tableaux and songs by the pupils; piano and violin solos by Miss A. Calla'han and Master J. Greene, who were the accompanists during the evening, and piano and vocal selections by a number of the pupils in duets, trios, quartets and choruses. There was a large attendance of friends of the school, and all enjoyed the entertainment.

Today's Games.

Newport at Pawtucket, Portland at Manchester, Brockton at Taunton.

Newport, 2; Manchester, 1.

The second Manchester game drew a fair-sized crowd of about 600 persons to Freebody park, and they saw another good game. It was not interfered with so much as the first by poor umpiring, though Mr. Duffy did say some very funny things, and was several times far away from the game. Both teams played sharply, but the Manchesters seemed doomed to victory, as again and again with men on bases the Newport batters were unable to hit safely, and great fielding by the visitors repeatedly saving runs. Luck also favored the visitors more than the home team, and the nine was better run than was the Newport team, Manager Irwin, Captain Carney and Lake all taking a hand in coaching.

It was a close game from start to finish, and the superior tactics of the visitors should have given them the victory. There was only one drawback, and his name was "Pat" Foley. He was on the rubber for Newport and had the visitors "fadel," and that is the reason they did not win. On the other hand the Newports did some execution with McCarthy's benders, and runs were expected inning after inning. They finally came in the ninth, three hits and a put-out yielding two runs, enough to win. Milderick opened with a safe one, Foley hit hard to third and was out, Milderick going to second; Gilbert sent one past second and stole second, and Reilley hit hard to center. Two runs came in, and perhaps the bleacherites did not cheer. The visitors could do nothing more than try in the ninth; they tried hard, but that is all they did.

In the second inning, with one out and Lake on first, Regan hit to Hanna and a double play was in order until the ball took an ugly bound and struck Hanna over the left eye, cutting it so badly that he had to retire. Instead of a double play Regan got a hit. Jack O'Brien was called in from right to second and Gallagher went to right. O'Brien ambled about second just as though he belonged there. Hickey, he of the tough face, did not show up at the start, and Ulrich, also of the funny face and country walk and long tongue, covered second for two innings. Kelley, of the Josephi-coat cap, going to right field. The score:

Taunton, Mass., June 8.—Weakness was the characteristic of the base ball game today and Taunton scored another defeat, resultant from the numerous errors of her players. Notes.

Manchester worked hard for the game, and the work counted in all but one particular—in relation to solving Foley's puzzles. The visitors gave the home team points on running a nine.

The crowd had several good innings when they felt sure the Newports were going to win out, but except in the ninth they were always doomed to disappointment.

Lake bemoaned the fact that Manchester is to play Portland next and Duffy is to be on hand to mar the work of the boys.

Portland plays in Manchester today and tomorrow, and two very lively games are anticipated. With the Manchesters playing the game they put up in Newport, they stand a good chance of winning two straight, and would then be within a point of the leaders.

With all due deference to Managers Smith, Burnham and Moore, and President Moy, it must be said that the two best teams in the New England League were at Freebody Park yesterday and the day before. There is no streak of yellow in either team, and yesterday showed it well.

The schedule committee of the New England League is expected to make its report on the revised schedule this evening. Manager Finn received word yesterday that in the arrangement of next week's games Newport will play two at home, with Taunton Monday and with Pawtucket Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday the club will play at Manchester, and Friday and Saturday at Portland.

At Fort Adams yesterday afternoon the Massachusetts team defeated the South Ends in a close and well played game, 7 to 6. This is the third consecutive victory of the sailor team over Newport teams since the squadron came here.

The grass is still uncut, waiting for another home run from a visitor's bat.

The Newport management might offer the use of the grounds, while the team is away, to the nines from the squadron to play.

BAILEY-TEW.

A pretty wedding took place last evening in the chapel of the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church, the principals being Mr. George E. Bailey and Miss Phebe A. Tew. The chapel was converted into a drawing-room and prettily decorated with palms and potted plants. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Benjamin Tew, and was attended by her sister, Miss Lillian Tew. Mr. Charles S. Crandall was the best man. The bride was dressed in white silk, wearing a tulle veil and carrying a bouquet of white roses. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will reside on Bowery street.

TO SPAR, OR TO FIGHT?

Tomorrow evening, according to the hand bills and posters, two professional bruisers, known as Fitzsimmons and Jeffries, will engage in a sparring contest at Coney Island. New York has a law, known as the Horton law, that permits sparring for points under certain restrictions, and it is under this that permission has been granted. But the talk on the outside is of a nature to make the four million in and about Greater New York interested in such exhibitions believe that it is to possess all the brutal attractiveness of the Carson City fight and some more. If it should turn out to be only a tame affair of dodging and thumping on so-called scientific principles, a great many who are paying large money to witness the contest will be grievously disappointed.

The contestants are loud and boastful, as is customary with gentlemen of their way of life. Fitzsimmons announces that he is ready to fight the battle of his life though he doesn't think his opponent will give him the hardest fight he ever had. The Horton law makes no provision whereby pugilists can fight the battle of their lives or for their lives at so much per head at the entrance. Like some other laws, it may possess elements of fiction, but it was nevertheless intended to protect society against the reproach of permitting unlimited license to professional prizefighters. New York, especially that end of it under Tammany control, is no better than it should be, but it yet has a little more regard for the properties of life than was exhibited by the Nevada legislature—that is, we hope and expect it has, and this advertised Coney Island entertainment will put the matter to the proof.—[Boston Transcript.

KEEP COOL AND KEEP CLEAN.

"Keep cool and keep clean" is the very excellent advice which the Galveston News gives to the people and especially to the officials of Texas in an article protesting against the hasty adoption of quarantine precautions against yellow fever. The News regards the appearance at New Orleans of a single case of the disease as an inadequate excuse for interrupting the commerce of the state and for filling its cities with panic fear. It is indeed strange that so soon after General Wood's conclusive demonstration in Santiago that no quarantine is necessary where municipal cleanliness exists, and so soon after Havana has supplied evidence in the same line almost as significant, the health authorities of Texas should have resorted at the first sign of danger to an antiquated remedy as bad as or worse than the malady against which it was long ago proved to be a most untrustworthy defense. Armed guards posted along railways and highways may keep out yellow fever for a while, but sooner or later it always breaks through the cordon if the conditions within are such as suit it. But where sewers are well built, streets and houses clean, and the habits of the people based on sanitary principles, infection has no chance to spread, even if it arrives, and business, which is the life of communities, is not subjected to disastrous interruptions.—[New York Times.
